Hello

Hello! How can I assist you with your health today? Are you experiencing any new symptoms, have a specific health concern, or is there something else on your mind regarding your well-being?

i have pain and my right back side

Thank you for sharing that. To help guide you to the right expert, could you tell me:

Is this pain something new for you, or have you experienced it before? If you have, has it changed in any way recently?

come suddenly

Thank you for clarifying that the pain came on suddenly.

Since this is a new and sudden pain, I'll route you to the best expert to help evaluate new symptoms.

Thank you for letting me know the pain started suddenly. To give you the most accurate advice and ensure your care is tailored to your needs, could you please share your age and your biological sex? These details help me consider the most likely causes and provide recommendations that fit your situation.

Please rest assured, any information you provide will remain private and confidential.

I am a 30 year old man.

Thank you for sharing that. Let's get a better understanding of your pain.

Can you describe exactly where on your right back side the pain is located? For example, is it higher up near your ribs, in the middle of your back, or lower down near your waist?

higher up near your ribs

SEE IT—your pain is on the right side of your back, higher up near your ribs.

Can you describe what the pain feels like? For example, is it sharp, dull, aching, stabbing, burning, or something else?

Thank you for clarifying that the pain is sharp.

How would you rate the intensity of your pain on a scale from 0 to 10, where 0 is no pain and 10 is the worst pain you can imagine?

8

That sounds quite severe. I want to make sure we understand the situation fully.

When did this pain start (for example, minutes, hours, or days ago)?

last night

Thank you for sharing that the pain started last night.

Is the pain constant, or does it come and go? If it comes and goes, how long does each episode last?

constant

Thank you for letting me know the pain is constant.

Have you noticed anything that makes the pain better or worse, such as movement, deep breathing, coughing, or changing positions?

when i walking the pain are increasing

That's helpful to know—the pain increases when you walk.

Have you noticed any other symptoms along with the pain, such as fever, cough, shortness of breath, chest pain, nausea, vomiting, or changes in your urine?

changes in urination

Thank you for mentioning changes in urination. Could you describe what changes you've noticed? For example, is it pain with urination, increased frequency, blood in the urine, difficulty starting, or something else?

increased frequency, and burning urination

Thank you for sharing that you have increased frequency and burning with urination.

Have you noticed any blood in your urine or any change in the color of your urine?

no

Thank you for clarifying—no blood or color change in your urine.

Have you had any recent injuries, heavy lifting, or strenuous activity before the pain started?

no

Thank you for letting me know there was no recent injury or heavy lifting.

Have you ever had similar pain or urinary symptoms in the past, or is this the first time you've experienced this combination of symptoms?

no

Thank you for confirming this is the first time you've experienced these symptoms.

Just to make sure we're not missing anything important: have you had any fever, chills, nausea, or vomiting since the pain started?

no any other symptoms

Thank you for clarifying—no other symptoms like fever, chills, nausea, or vomiting.

To make sure I have your main concerns right: you're a 30-year-old man with sudden, sharp pain on the right side of your upper back near your ribs, rated 8/10 in intensity, constant since last night, made worse by walking, and accompanied by increased urinary frequency and burning with urination. No blood in urine, no recent injuries, and no similar symptoms in the past.

Is there anything else about your symptoms or health that you're concerned about or hoping to address today?

no

Thank you for confirming. Now, I'd like to ask about your past medical history to help guide us further.

Do you have any chronic medical conditions, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, kidney problems, or any other significant illnesses or hospitalizations in the past?

no

Thank you for letting me know you don't have any chronic medical conditions or significant past illnesses.

Next, could you please list any medications you are currently taking, including over-the-counter medicines, supplements, or herbal remedies? If you aren't taking any, just let me know.

no

Thank you for confirming you're not taking any medications.

Now, do you have any allergies to medications, foods, or other substances? If so, please let me know what you're allergic to, what kind of reaction you had, and when it last happened. If you have no allergies, just let me know.

no other symptoms

Thank you for clarifying. Just to confirm, you have no known allergies to medications, foods, or other substances.

AI Consult Summary

Nov 27, 2025, 11:00 am

You presented with sudden, sharp pain on the right upper back near your ribs accompanied by burning urination and increased frequency, making kidney stone (urolithiasis) and a possible UTI or pyelonephritis the primary considerations. The next steps include ordering a urinalysis, urine culture, CBC, and a non-contrast CT scan of the abdomen and pelvis to confirm the diagnosis and guide appropriate treatment.
